Technical skills and competences	I wrote and actually selling mobile applications for the main mobile platforms. Every software uses the DPsoftware UI toolkit, a home made UI toolkit builded to create portable mobile applications. FPC Bench is a free benchmark to test CPU, GPU, Memory, Internet speed and APIs support. This software has been featured on java.com as Duke's piece, it has been featured on many international tech magazines and it was used by Nokia to test their JVM. Mortgage Calculator PRO is one of the best selling software in my mobile collection and it is completely portable and has been featured in The New York Times. All the mobile software are sold in the main mobile stores and on my personal site. My site is completely managed by me, I bought a VPS, I installed Linux (CentOS) on it and configured all the necessary services like Apache, PHP, MySQL, Postfix, Dovecot, Squirrelmail, Cacti, Iptables. The payments/registration process is completely managed using my server. I have done a Linux kernel patch for the USB-Storage module to fix a problem in the UMS feature of a Motorola V3x. The patch has been officially included in the official vanilla kernel.
